

Billy Joe Dupree

Billy Joe Dupree is a Dallas Cowboys legend and is also a legend in the community and in business. Tight end Dupree was the Cowboys 1st round draft choice in 1973 and he was immediately earned a position in the starting line-up; that season he was a nominee for NFL Rookie of the Year. He was known as a superb blocker and pass receiver and was selected to 3 consecutive Pro Bowls as a starter from 1976 to 1978.

Bill Joe played in Super Bowls X, XII and XIII, winning the title in Super Bowl XII. In his 11 year career, remarkably he never missed a game. He served a term one of the team's captains and was named by Sports Illustrated to the All-Time Cowboy Super Bowl Team. Twice he was nominated by the Cowboys for NFL Man of the Year honors.

In an era when tight ends were mostly an extension of the O-Line, Dupree caught a Cowboys' team record 41 touchdown passes, a record only eclipsed by Jason Whitten in 2012, a span of 29 years.

Dupree was a very successful businessman even during his playing days. He owned a commercial construction company while still playing and was a General Partner in a development company. Given his business acumen, he then became a small business consultant and worked for the Office of Minority Business in Dallas. All the while, Billy Joe became involved in many charities such as the Shriners and Meals on Wheels.

Given Billy Joe's success in so many areas, he is a great choice to speak to your organization.
