

Charles Mann

Charles is one of the greats of the game of football. He dominated at his position, left defensive end, for 12 seasons, 11 with the Washington Redskins and one final season with the San Francisco 49'ers. He won Super Bowl XXII and XXVI with Redskins and Super Bowl XXIX with the 49'ers.

Individual awards were also compiled by Mann. He was a 4-time Pro Bowl participant in 1987, 1988, 1989 and 1991. His 17 forced fumbles are the most in the long and storied Washington franchise and 82 of his 83 career sacks came for the Redskins and rank second-most in team history. He has been inducted into the Redskins Ring of Fame and was named one of the 70 Greatest Redskins of all-time. Additionally, he has been nominated for induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame fourteen times.

As successful as Charles was on the football field, he has been even more successful in his life off the field, if that's possible. His many interests include Charles Mann Enterprises which does many things from engineering to contracting to credit card processing. He previously was a founder and partner in Alliant Merchant Services. His passion of giving back has benefitted the following organizations: The Washington DC Youth Power Center (formerly The Good Samaritan Foundation), National Kidney Foundation, Ronald McDonald Children's Charities, Read to Achieve Foundation, Why School is Cool Program, Children's Hospital, The Children's Cancer Foundation. For all his efforts, in 1993 Charles was voted as one of the "Washingtonians of the Year". In 2013, the Virginia governor appointed Charles to the College Building Authority for VA.

At age 54, Charles completed his Business degree which he had begun over 30 years before and the following year he then achieved his MBA with a 3.78 Grade Point Average.

He and his wife have been married for over 33 years and are parents to three prospering children. He has served as an usher and Deacon at his local church and loves to share his faith in the Lord Jesus Christ whenever he can. He was one of several strong Christian men on the great Redskins teams that he played on.

Charles is a fantastic speaker who delivers a clear Gospel message to all age groups.
