

Danny Buggs

Danny Buggs was drafted by the New York Giants in 1975 where he played his rookie season and part of the following season. He moved on to the Washington Redskins in the middle of the 1976 seasons and played in the nation's capital through the 1979 season. In 1980, Danny moved north to play for the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League where he won the Grey Cup, the CFL's championship trophy. He finished his pro football career by moving to the USFL in 1983 to play for the Tampa Bay Bandits and two final seasons with the San Antonio Gunslingers.

During this time in his career, Daniel realized that football merely provided a means for doing his life's work – serving others. After his professional football career, he began a non-profit organization, "The Winning Circle", which taught a holistic approach to life skills instilled in young people. In 1997 he received the Scroll of Courage from Reggie White's National Alliance of African American Athletes for The Winning Circle. He returned to his alma mater, West Virginia, to serve the student athletes as Chaplain through the Fellowship of Christian Athletes for six years. Daniel orchestrated the campus ministry chapter, which continues to this day. Currently, he serves as an Atlanta Multi-Metro Area Ministry Director for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, specifically serving inner-city Atlanta and as the National FCA Inner-City Director.

On May 7, 2011, Daniel was bestowed an Honorary Doctorate Degree from Carver Bible College in Atlanta, GA. Daniel has also recently published a book, "Just Like Jesus – Make Every Play Count: A Playbook for Success". There are many descriptive words that could be said about Daniel, but simply he is truly a servant who is committed to sharing with people everywhere.

As a speaker, Daniel is known for his versatile, thought-provoking style and technique. He has been invited to share at numerous colleges, universities, football bowl games, pre-season team meetings/dinners, Men's Day Worship Services, and Men's Conferences. He also spoke at Super Bowl game events in 2008 and 2009. His magnetic personality blended with a captivating delivery style, attracts audiences and speaking invitations worldwide to hear his enlightening, motivating and life challenging messages. He is quickly emerging as one of the most influential leaders and speakers of this generation.
