

Everson Walls

In March of 2007, Everson Walls made the biggest donation of his life. He donated a kidney to former Dallas Cowboy teammate, Ron Springs. That is a true teammate!

After a great college career at Grambling State University, Walls attended the Cowboy's training camp as a free agent. He made the squad in 1981 and donned the "blue-starred" #24 jersey. His nine years with the Cowboys were filled with accolades and accomplishments. In his rookie year, he broke the rookie record with 11 interceptions. He was named to the Pro Bowl team 4 times and in 1981, 1982 and 1985 he led the NFL in interceptions. In 1986, he was the youngest player named to the Cowboys 25th Year Anniversary Team, and in 1987 he was named Cowboy's Man of the Year.

In 1990, Walls continued his career with the New York Giants, where he was the leading pass defender with six interceptions on the Giants' Super Bowl Team. In 1992, he signed and started with the Cleveland Browns.

After retiring from football in 1993, Walls was named to the All Time Cowboy's Team. He was appointed to the NFL's All Decade Team for the 1980's, and in 1998, he was elected to the Louisiana Sports Hall of Fame. He is one of only two players to ever league the league in interceptions in 3 different seasons and he holds the record for most interceptions on Monday Night Football, proof that he performs best when the lights are brightest!

Walls is a dedicated husband, married to Shreill Walls and is a devoted father of two; Cameron Collins Walls and Charis Shreill Walls.

Giving back to the community that supported him is very important to Walls, as he shares his time with various charitable organizations and events. Of course, he loves to share about the importance of organ donation. His message is personal and compelling; medical and organ donation groups love hearing his passionate story and corporations can learn about the true meaning of teamwork and sacrifice.

Everson Walls delivers an impactful message to any group to which he speaks. Book him to speak to your organization today and don't miss the moving and inspiring stories that Everson has to share.
