

Jerry Reuss

Jerry Reuss pitched in the Major Leagues for 22 years and his career spanned 4 decades from the '60's to the '90's. He began his MLB career at the tender age of 20 by pitching for the St. Louis Cardinals in 1969. After winning 14 games for the Cards Jerry was traded to the Houston Astros for two seasons and won 16 games for the Astros in 1973 before being traded to the Pittsburgh Pirates. He pitched in the Steel City for 5 seasons and topped out at 18 wins in 1975. In 1979, Jerry was traded to the Los Angeles Dodgers for Rick Rhoden and he played 8 seasons at Chavez Ravine, twice winning 18 games. He also threw a no-hitter in 1980. For the remainder of his career, Reuss spent time with the Cincinnati Reds, California Angels, Chicago White Sox and Milwaukee Brewers before doing one final tour again with the Pirates.

Jerry won 220 games in his career, played in two All-Star games (1975 and 1980) and pitched in the 1981 World Series for the Dodgers.

Since his retirement as an active player, Jerry has worked in broadcasting as a color analyst for ESPN, the Anaheim Angels and since 2006, Jerry has been in the major leagues working radio and TV for the Dodger broadcasts east of Colorado. Based in Las Vegas, Jerry has done radio and television work (analyst and play by play) for the Las Vegas Stars (now 51's) in the Pacific Coast League.

Reuss is an accomplished live-action baseball photographer whose pictures have been published in magazines and on Upper Deck baseball cards.

As someone who has spent a lifetime in the game first as a player, later as a coach and broadcaster, Jerry Reuss has many great baseball tales from the dugout to share and he does so with the flare of the broadcaster and entertainer that he is.
