

Mike Davis

Mike had a ten-year career during which he came to the plate one time short of three thousand times. For eight seasons the outfielder played in Oakland for the A's. He had solid power and when he got the at-bats, he was able to go deep. He hit 24 home runs and 82 RBI in 1985. He followed that up with seasons of 19 and 22 homeruns. He also showed speed on the basepaths by stealing 32 bases in 1983 and 20+ bases in two other seasons.

After the 1987 season, Mike signed with the Los Angeles Dodgers as a free agent and that year, played in the World Series against his former team. Mike was able to draw a walk in game 1 that was followed by Kirk Gibson's memorable walk-off home run.

Playing time was difficult to come by with the Dodgers and Mike retired after the 1989 season.

During his playing days, Mike was very involved with his team's baseball chapel program and spoke frequently and openly about his faith.
