Through his academic research, while doing a Masters Degree in Leadership/Business, and embedded in his inspiring presentations, Ryan creates focus around his POWER TRIANGLE™ concept. The Power Triangle illustrates the ways every company/organization win or lose based on how their Human Capital interacts in the areas of: 1-Personal High Performance, 2-Team and 3-Leadership.

In addition to a full schedule of Key Note speeches, Team/Leadership development sessions and Personal high performance Coaching, Ryan has authored 3 highly successful books: Off the Bench, Mpower Forward and Simply the Best.

Ryan Walter started his high performance career early, drafted to the NHL 2nd over all in 1978, becoming the youngest captain in NHL history, playing professional hockey for 15 seasons in over 1000 NHL games. He personally experienced how leadership affected both struggling and successful teams. He had the honour of being Captain of Team Canada's World Junior Team, played for Team Canada in 4 World Championships, played in the 1983 All-Star game, and was named the NHL's "Man of the Year" in 1992 for his on-ice and off-ice contributions to the game. Additionally, Ryan was a player representative and Vice-President of the NHL Players Association. Walter's career culminated in two trips to the Stanley Cup final, winning in 1986. Ryan then turned his energy towards Business, Broadcasting and Professional Speaking.

Hundreds of Companies and Organizations have leveraged Ryan's academic and high performance history to help them better understand how to LEAD and SYNERGIZE their Human Capital. Walter engages behavioral change with an emphasis on growing Leadership and developing team.

Ryan believes that adults learn best by doing and therefore creates individual client-driven, interactive, engaging sessions that practically add value and create positive change.
