

Willie Pile

Willie was drafted in the seventh round of the 2003 NFL draft by the Kansas City Chiefs. He was released at the end of training camp and was out of football until signing to the Chiefs practice squad during week 14 of the season.

In 2004, Pile spent the spring with the Amsterdam Admirals of NFL Europe. He then returned to Kansas City and finished his first NFL season with 37 tackles, one for a loss, four pass breakups and seven special team's stops.

The following season, Willie saw considerable playing time with the Dallas Cowboys in all 16 games with one start. He recorded 11 special teams' tackles, good for fourth on the team and recorded 14 stops from his safety position. In 2006, Willie was released during camp by Dallas. He spent the rest of the 2006 season away from football.

Willie then changed his course and signed with the Toronto Argonauts of the CFL for the 2007 season. He finished his first season in the CFL as the Argos' third-leading tackler with 76 tackles after starting 17 of 18 regular season games. He also had eight special teams' tackles; five sacks, two forced fumbles and one pass knock down. He became a fixture on the defensive side of the ball for the Argos to the end of his 5-year career in the CFL playing both safety and linebacker.

Pile is a captivating and dynamic motivational speaker.

Drawing from his life experiences and his NFL career, where he's played for both the Kansas City Chiefs and the Dallas Cowboys, Willie seeks to inspire his audience with a message based on hard work, discipline and the importance of goal setting.

During his career, Pile was a leader in the team Bible studies and was actively involved in Athletes in Action, Scripture Union Sportz and with the Salvation Army.
