

Jocelyn Lemieux

Jocelyn was one tough customer in his NHL career which spanned almost 600 games. Like older brother Claude, Jocelyn could agitate and mix it up.

He began his NHL career in 1986 with the St. Louis Blues after being their first round draft choice. Of course, the Montreal Canadiens want any talented French Canadiens for their own roster and they swung a trade for Jocelyn. This allowed Jocelyn and Claude to play together on the same team. But as the on-ice free spirit he was, coach Pat Burns had him spend much of his time in the minors. He was traded to the Chicago Blackhawks part way through the 1989-90 season and spent his most successful time in the Windy City for all or parts of 5 seasons.

Jocelyn then spent the next 5 seasons between the Hartford Whalers, New Jersey Devils, Calgary Flames and Phoenix Coyotes.
